Television Chiefs Forecast Billion Dollar Boom Year

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—With the public patiently waiting on the sidelines, television's first billion dollar year is coming into focus according to the word of bigwigs in the industry.

For broadcasters, says Jennings Pierce of the National Broadcasting company in confirmation of this, it is a year of decision as to whether to go all out for television or not. Pierce is NBC manager of station relations here.

Reviewing the prospects carefully, Pierce leaves small reason to doubt that the big broadcasters, and many not so big, will see the lights all green.

In fact, they are green enough now, he indicates, that the television industry already is counting on spending 10 million dollars for expansion of facilities and programs in 1948. As for financial returns, stations affiliated with NBC report that their television projects virtually would be in the black right now if it were not for their plowing of profits back into development.

Boom Brightens

The television boom is brightening every entertainment front in Hollywood. Movie agents think about television every time they look their clients. Photographers are assessing the new techniques the medium requires. Organized labor is watching carefully all possible chances to enlarge union jurisdictions.

Evidence that something like a television gold rush can be looked for before long was furnished by a recent series of three forum sessions held by the Hollywood Advertising club. Every meeting was a sellout. Advertising people, motion picture people, manufacturers, and many others seemed thoroughly agreed that the American public is ready for "sight with sound."

200,000 New Sets

Last year put nearly 200,000 new television sets on the market, according to J. R. Poppole, vice-president of Bamberger Broadcasting service, whom Pierce quotes. It's Poppole who says that "1948 will see television move out of the one million dollar class into the one billion dollar class." Pierce cites an estimate that 750,000 sets will be turned out this year.

To show how the whole thing is growing, it also can be said that there were 16 television stations operating in the United States in 1947 as against only 8 or 9 in 1946. This year, Pierce says there are 20. Some 60 more are presently authorized and about 80 applications are pending.

In Los Angeles and Hollywood, two television stations are broadcasting now. There will be at least three more. NBC hopes to be on the air in San Francisco before the year ends.

Arrow Poison Proves Helpful Aid In Chest Operations

SAN FRANCISCO.—Curare, the deadly arrow poison of South American Indians, has proved very valuable in chest operations, three researchers asserted.

This exotic poison showed its worth in 462 operations at the University of California hospital.

The results were reported by Dr. H. Brodie Stephens, Dr. P. Harroun and Dr. F. E. Beckert.

It is doubly valuable, they said, because it permits the surgeon to use the "hot knife" on the lungs, and because it can safely slow down or even stop the patient's breathing.

The hot knife is the electric cauterizing needle. It shoots out a hot spark which cuts the flesh rapidly. At the same time the spark sears the cut and prevents bleeding.

Curare temporarily paralyzes the nerves controlling the lung muscles. It kills by causing its victims to suffocate.

Blind Miner Unhurt In Shaft After Escape From Snowslide

SALT LAKE CITY.—Roy Newman, a blind miner, was found unhurt in a mine shaft in a mountain canyon where a snowslide blocked a highway. Rescuers looked for him in shafts after finding his cabin in the slide area intact. He was reported to have heard the roar of snow and rocks and stayed in the shaft.

Three skiers in a car with California license plates left a lodge at Brighton 30 minutes before the slide occurred in Big Cottonwood canyon in the Wasatch mountains. There was no indication they got caught in the slide, but officials said they were trying to learn their whereabouts.

Stranded in the lodge area were 100 winter sports enthusiasts, among them 45 Stanford University students from California on vacation.

Cover Crops Reduce Soil Erosion Losses

Research Tests Show Four Main Advantages

How cover crops seeded in corn and other row crops could help farmers fight erosion, build up the soil's organic matter and add to the nitrogen supply, is indicated in studies by research men in Iowa agricultural experiment station.

Four major advantages are cited:

1. Cover crops protect the soil from August to May. One-fourth of the annual soil loss occurs during this period.
2. Well-fertilized legumes and grasses add organic matter to the soil that helps resist erosion during the May and June period. This is the time when one-half of the annual soil losses occur.
3. Cover crops add nitrogen to the soil, especially when legumes are a part of all the mixture.
4. The yield of corn will be slightly increased in the year following the seeding of cover crops.

Research workers have developed a plan that licks the problem of seeding the cover crops. Just before laying by the corn, they broadcast the seed with an endgate seeder. Weeders are attached to the cultivator to help cover the seed and better growth results.

Good field of corn secured from proper plant food.

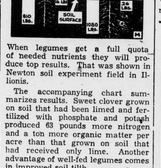
Clover and Alfalfa Need Limed, Fertilized Soil

Sweet clover and alfalfa will do a good job of increasing the soil's supply of nitrogen and vitally needed organic matter if they are well fed.

Legumes are heavy eaters of phosphate and potash. They thrive best in a soil that has been limed to correct acidity and to furnish calcium.



When legumes get a full quota of needed nutrients they will produce top results. That was shown in Newton soil experiment field in Illinois.

The accompanying chart summarizes results. Sweet clover grown on soil that had been limed and fertilized with phosphate and potash produced 63 pounds more nitrogen in the top 6 inches of organic matter per acre than that grown on soil that had received only lime. Another advantage of well-fed legumes comes in improved soil tilth.

The sturdy tap roots of well-fed sweet clover and alfalfa drive through plow sole compactions and push mineralized organic matter deep into the soil. They open tight soil to air and moisture. The added organic matter and better tilth 18 to 25 inches deep enable crops following in the rotation to make more efficient use of the plant food available in the soil.

Increased Production Of Butterfat Required

Dairy farmers whose average annual production per cow is only 6,000 pounds are operating on a bare subsistence figure, it is pointed out by Howard O. Selby, general manager of the United Farmers of New England. It is not unreasonable to suggest that an annual production per cow of 7,500 pounds would be possible and that it would yield an economic level more nearly in line with other groups in the nation, he adds.

Cleanliness Emphasized In Treating of Wounds

Horses under treatment do much better at pasture than in stables, if the weather is suitable. If sick, horses must be stabled, quarters should be clean and well-ventilated. Be gentle in dressing wounds, clip closely or shave the hair around the wound and make sure that no discharge from around the edges is carried into the wound. Proper drainage of the wound must be assured.

You bowled your head off when a home town player, bat on shoulder, let a perfect pitch whizz into the catcher's mitt for the third strike. Well, you'd have the same right to howl if you saw the man who works next to you miss the last on this tax reduction business. By taking the extra money and putting it into United States savings bonds through the payroll savings plan he actually would be hitting a home run for security for self and country.
